COEL STAFF SETTLES INTO CITY CENTER, CLARE HALL

Stritch's new 24,000 square foot City Center campus in the former Laboratory Building at The Brewery redevelopment project in downtown Milwaukee, which serves as the new home to part of the College of Education and Leadership (COEL) and several other programs, is now open. Additional COEL programs are located in the remodeled lower level of Clare Hall on campus.

The COEL departments and centers located at the City Center include:

- Graduate degree programs
- Doctoral Studies
- School of Leadership (The Leadership Center, Office of Mentoring and Coaching, Master of Educational Leadership program)
- School of Urban Initiatives
- Literacy and Language Development
- Reading Centers
- Master of Education program

Programs, faculty and staff located in Clare Hall:

- Undergraduate teacher education programs
- Master of Arts in Teaching program
- Special Education programs (undergraduate and graduate)
- Instructional Technology

(Classes for these programs will take place in buildings throughout campus.)

The City Center includes faculty and staff office space and 10 classrooms, nine of which can be opened up and converted into meeting and conference space with audiovisual capability and wireless Internet access. Amenities include a kitchen, break room/vending area, drop-in areas with computer access for visiting faculty and students, and one-on-one instruction rooms for the Literacy and Language Development department.

Some COEL faculty and staff will have responsibilities, classes, and meetings at both locations. Phone extensions for all faculty and staff at City Center and in Clare Hall remain the same. Those working in or visiting City Center can park in the marked gravel lot adjacent to the building's north end, off of N. 10th St. The only entrance to the building is the eastern door, which is open during business hours.

A total of 60-65 faculty and staff will occupy the City Center by the end of summer, with another 30 already in Clare Hall. Renovations there include updated HVAC units, a new fire alarm system, ADA-accessible restrooms, lighting, carpeting and a student lounge.

Remodeling work is underway in the former COEL building on campus, which will be transformed over the summer into a second residence hall for undergraduate students, called Assisi Hall. The building will house incoming freshman and returning sophomore students and is slated to be finished by Aug. 15.

UPDATED STRITCH FOLDERS NOW AVAILABLE

The Public Relations office is now offering new Stritch folders featuring a simple, elegant design appropriate for use across all colleges and programs. The front side of the new folder features a line drawing of the Great Hall on Stritch's main Milwaukee campus connecting to the skyline of Assisi, Italy, and the Basilica of St. Francis on the back of the folder.

The folders were updated to be more universal and capture the colors of the University Web site, said Kou Vang, creative director. The inside right hand flap contains cuts that accommodate the new vertically-oriented Stritch business cards. The folders were conceptualized and designed by the Creative Services staff of the PR office, which includes Vang, Jane Backes, art director, and Naomi Kaufman, graphic designer.

The metallic silver ink is coupled with the maroon, yellow and blue Web colors, which frame the Stritch tagline, "the bridge between where you are and where you want to be," and the University mission statement, "transforming lives through value-centered education."

"We wanted the design to be classy and simple, so it could be used for all purposes in any department," she said. "We also kept the colors to a minimum so the outside wouldn't overpower what was put inside."

The folders are available to all University colleges and departments at a cost of $.75 each. The small cost increase from $.60 is due to higher printing and ink costs. To place an order for folders or business cards, contact Charleen Engberg in the PR office at cengberg@stritch.edu or at ext. 4478.
